

I'd just like to give a quick thank you to all of you at Which Door.

We have needed to redesign our website for quite some time but have always been nervous about the cost and effectiveness of sorting it out. Everything through Which Door has been dealt with with speed, courteousness and simplicity. The whole process was explained to us within the first call and we were made to feel completely at ease, you took away the pressure and worries that come with creating a new website.

The design that you came up with was top notch, the free design of a mock was something that no one else has ever offered us, and we were happy to go ahead as soon as you delivered the mock within the 48 hour time frame that had been promised. Already we are finding that our current clients love the new layout and easier navigation and we have also received positive feedback from new clients who have found us since the new website went live. I will have no hesitation in recommending Which Door in the future. It is the most pain free experience we have had since first setting out with a website for the business.

I wish you well for the future,
Steve Batley
